Nutter: 'Some action needed to be taken'

Schools. Mayor Michael Nutter said, "It's not the proudest moment in the city's history."

Mayor Michael Nutter on Tuesday said he sides with the School Reform Commission.

"They did the one thing that they had left," Nutter said.

Nutter spoke one day after the SRC — the board that governs the School District of Philadelphia — announced at a meeting without much prior notice that it had canceled its contract with the teachers' union and mandated that teachers pay toward their health benefits. The SRC also canceled benefits for retired district workers.

Nutter said that in this era it's unsustainable for employees to not pay something toward their health benefits, especially employees of a district that has closed 32 schools and eliminated 5,000 positions.

"The action, unfortunately, was necessary," Nutter said. "The fact is that the system is broken. There is no more money to be had from anywhere."

While district officials touted that no salaries would be cut, healthcare coverage would cost between $71 and $200 a month per family and it would be deducted from the employee's paycheck. Retired workers lost their dental, vision and prescription plans. These changes go into effect on Dec. 15.

School officials said the overhaul annually would save the cash-strapped district about $44 million this year and $70 million per year in the future.

In regards to the meeting, which was not heavily advertised, Nutter said with a small advertisement in The Inquirer the SRC followed "the requirement under the law."

"I think the action itself is most upsetting to folks," he said, "but the bottom line here, is some action needed to be taken."

Quoted

"This is the most egregiously political action I've seen in a school district. ... In addition to being a callous denigration of educators and a blatant disrespect of the law and the contract."

Randi Weingarten, American Federation of Teachers president

By the numbers

- Employees earning less than $25,000 per year will pay 5 percent toward their plan.
- Those earning between $25,000 and $50,000 will pay 10 percent.
- Those earning more than $55,000 will pay 13 percent.

Poll: Corbett trails Wolf in Gov. race

Gov. Tom Corbett / FILE PHOTO

Republican Gov. Tom Corbett continues to trail his Democratic opponent by double-digit margins a month before the general election, according to a poll released Tuesday by Quinnipiac University in Connecticut.

Corbett trails Tom Wolf by 17 percentage points with support from 38 percent of likely voters, the poll showed, compared to 55 percent who favor Wolf.

Corbett lacks the support of 22 percent of Republicans, the lowest rate of support from his own party by any incumbent governor.

Wolf, a businessman who poured his personal fortune into a four-way race for the Democratic nomination, came out early with a series of autobiographical ads that touted his work as a Peace Corps volunteer.

He has pledged to levy a tax on natural gas drillers to fund shortfalls in the state's education budget.

Corbett, who was elected in 2010, has suffered from poor approval ratings through much of his first term as the state struggled economically.

Revel Casino sale clears Camden court

Revel Casino officially has new owners.

In Camden on Tuesday, a federal bankruptcy judge green-lighted the sale of the embattled Atlantic City casino.

Originally built in 2012 for a staggering $2.4 billion, an affiliate of Brookfield Asset Management Inc. won the estate with a bid of $110 million, according to Reuters.

Objections from a Florida developer pushed the case to court after he claimed the auction was fixed.

The developer, Glenn Straub, requested a new auction run by an independent authority. His request was denied.

New Venice Island theater to light up the Schuylkill River

Manayunk. A long-awaited $46 million performing arts center in Manayunk over a rainwater treatment plant opened Tuesday.

The new Venice Island Performing Arts & Recreation Center opened Tuesday on a spit of land that has fallen into decay in recent years.

"This is a crowning jewel," said Jane Lipton, executive director of the Manayunk Development Corporation. "We haven't seen a game changer like this in the 30-year reinvention of Manayunk."

The state-of-the-art, environmentally friendly theater, built by the Water Department, has a stormwater management tank under it. Parks and Rec will maintain the center.

"This project itself is unusual and unique," said Parks and Recreation deputy commissioner Leo Dignam. "We don't usually spend this much money on a combined project that is beneficial to both the departments and to the community of people living there."

All types of theater

The center includes:

- A 250-seat theater
- Basketball courts
- A spray park

"To someone who lives here, the changes and enhancements to that piece of the island are spectacular." Lipton

Facebook. Vice unit starts posting johns' pics online to 'deter' crime

Police have a new message for johns in the city.

"Patronize a prostitute in Philly? Look forward to seeing your picture on Facebook!" the Philadelphia Police Department wrote on its Facebook page Tuesday, along with the mugshots of four suspects arrested during an undercover sting in the 24th District on Oct. 2.

Lt. John Stanford said the new policy is to spread awareness about enforcement of prostitution crimes.

"We were looking for a way where people can actually see this. ... It can be somewhat of a deterrent," Stanford said. "It's not to embarrass them, it's just to make people aware that prostitution is ... still something that we take seriously."

Asked about the legality of posting suspects' mug shots, Stanford said the identities of all suspects arrested by police can be made public.

Visit Metro.us for more about the department's Facebook plans.

Quoted

"From now on, we will be publishing the photos of 'Johns' that are charged as part of a PPD City Wide Vice effort to arrest individuals who patronize prostitutes."

PPD's Facebook page

"Every arrest is a public record," Stanford said, adding that alleged johns' mug shots will periodically be cleaned from its Facebook page.

The citywide Vice Enforcement Unit regularly releases information about undercover prostitution stings. More than 20 solicitation arrests have been reported since September.

"People see it as a victimless crime, but it's not. ... It's one of those conduits that allows crime to occur and it leads to other crimes," Stanford said. "We want to send a message that if you solicit in Philly, whether it's on a street corner, a Backpage ad or through social media, if we find out about it, we are going to make an arrest and put that information out there."

Luciano Peralta, 47, John Yoder, 54, and Johnathan Singleton, 51, of Philadelphia, and Edward Piatigorsky, 70, of New Holland, Pennsylvania, arrested on Oct. 2, face charges of patronizing prostitution and solicitation. About $1,000 and four cars were seized, too.

House passes bill that would raise firearm sentence

Philadelphia. Carrying an illegal gun in the city is now just a misdemeanor.

A bill that would increase the sentence for illegally carrying a firearm in Philadelphia — known as House Bill 1091 — passed in the House of Representatives this week.

The act would be upgraded to a third-degree felony and add a mandatory minimum sentence of at least two years of total confinement, according to the District Attorney's office. Presently, the offense is classified as a misdemeanor.

The bill "will help us make the City of Philadelphia and its neighboring communities safer by providing additional tools in our fight against gun violence," said DA Seth Williams.

"It is the criminals who carry guns illegally who are responsible for the tragic losses of too many Philadelphians," Williams added.

In August, Williams said he stood with Rep. John Taylor, Sen. Larry Farnese and district attorneys from nearby counties touting the legislation.

"We spoke out about the need for better legislation that would take firearms out of the hands of criminals and make our streets safer," Williams said. "Just a day after that press conference, there was a shooting a few blocks away from that location, making the need for HB 1091 even clearer and more urgent." METRO

On a personal note

Williams said this legislation is important, especially for the family of Tynirah Borum.

- Tynirah Borum is the 3-year-old girl who was shot and killed by a stray bullet on her Grays Ferry front porch in August.
- Douglas Woods had been charged with her murder.

‘7th Heaven’ dad Collins investigated for child molestation

Recording. Audio from a therapy session reportedly contains Stephen Collins’ confession.

Stephen Collins / GETTY IMAGES

Former “7th Heaven” star and author Stephen Collins is under investigation after a recording surfaced on TMZ in which Collins allegedly admits to molesting several young children.

In the recording, from a therapy session with then-wife Faye Grant, Collins admits to molesting an 11-year-old girl and exposing himself to two other girls between the ages of 10 and 13.

According to the New York Daily News, the NYPD’s Special Victims Unit is currently investigating the claims, as two of the alleged victims were Manhattan residents then. The abuse is said to have taken place more than 40 years ago, in 1972, though it wasn’t reported until 2012.

“I woke up today to learn that an extremely private recording I handed over to the authorities in 2012 per their request in connection with a criminal investigation was recently disseminated to the press,” Grant said in a statement on Tuesday. “I had no involvement whatsoever with the release of the tape to the media.”

Following the recording’s release, Collins, 67, was fired from Seth MacFarlane’s upcoming “Ted 2,” in which he was reportedly set to play a small role, according to Entertainment Weekly. He has also resigned from his position on the National Board of the Screen Actors Guild. And UP TV and the TV Guide Network announced that they would immediately stop running syndicated episodes of “7th Heaven.”

iPhone hit by new social media storm

First, there was “bendgate.” Now brace yourself for “hairgate.”

Fresh from the online uproar over whether the shiny new iPhone 6 bends when carried around in pockets, Apple has been hit by a new complaint — that the handset traps users’ hair or beards when they make calls.

It is difficult to gauge whether there is any real issue, but Twitter users have made #hairgate a rising social media trend, leading major news outlets to pounce on the story.

“The seam on my iPhone 6 where the aluminum meets the glass is definitely catching my hair and pulling it out,” one user tweeted.

Bearded iPhone users have jumped on the bandwagon, complaining that their facial hair gets yanked during calls, leading to spats over whether to treat #beardgate as a separate trend, or simply as a subset of #hairgate.

Apple was not immediately available to comment. REUTERS

More US states push for gay unions

Legal pressure mounted across the country on Tuesday for further expansion of marriage rights after the Supreme Court declined to uphold bans in five states, but left intact 20 others.

The 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago issued orders on Tuesday that mean earlier rulings striking down bans in Wisconsin and Indiana can now go into effect.

Marriage equality advocates in Florida also planned to ask a federal judge on Tuesday to lift a stay and allow same-sex unions to go ahead in Florida. Legal challenges were also being planned in North and South Carolina and West Virginia.

The U.S. Supreme Court declined on Monday to rule on whether states can ban gay marriage, but rejected appeals to uphold the ban in Virginia, Oklahoma, Utah, Wisconsin and Indiana. REUTERS

Ebola. Four in hospital in Spain after first case not contracted in Africa

Four people have been hospitalized in Spain to try to stem the spread of Ebola after a Spanish nurse became the first person in the world known to have contracted the virus outside of Africa, authorities said on Tuesday.

The nurse, who tested positive for the virus on Monday, her husband, who is showing no symptoms of the disease and two other people are being closely monitored in the hospital, health officials told a news conference in Madrid.

One of those hospitalized is a health worker who has diarrhea but no fever. The other is a Spaniard who traveled from Nigeria, said Rafael Perez-Santamaria, head of the Carlos III Hospital where the infected nurse treated two Spanish missionaries who contracted the disease in Africa.

Twenty-two people who came into contact with the nurse are being monitored, Perez-Santamaria said. REUTERS

US Ebola patient on ventilator, getting dialysis

Treatment. Thomas Eric Duncan has also begun receiving an experimental drug.

The Ebola patient fighting for his life in a Dallas hospital is on a ventilator and a kidney dialysis machine to help stabilize his health, the hospital said on Tuesday.

Liberian national Thomas Eric Duncan, the first person diagnosed with the deadly virus on U.S. soil, has also been given the experimental medication brincidofovir. The manufacturer said it has been tested in more than 1,000 patients without raising safety concerns.

Texas Health Presbyterian Hospital said in a statement that Duncan's liver function declined over the weekend. It said although it has since improved, "doctors caution that this could vary in coming days."

Authorities in the United States and the public are on alert following Duncan's diagnosis more than a week ago.

Duncan arrived in Texas last month on a commercial flight from Liberia and has been in critical condition since Saturday.

Sen. Chuck Schumer said he expects the U.S. Centers for Disease Control will propose tougher Ebola screening requirements this week at U.S. airports. REUTERS

Male Ebola survivors told: Use a condom

Sex could keep the Ebola epidemic alive even after the World Health Organization (WHO) declares an area free of the disease, one of the discoverers of the deadly virus said on Tuesday.

The WHO is hoping to announce later this week that Nigeria and Senegal are free of Ebola after 42 days with no infections — the standard period for declaring an outbreak over, twice the maximum 21-day incubation period of the virus.

However, it appears the disease can last much longer in semen.

"In a convalescent male, the virus can persist in semen for at least 70 days; one study suggests persistence for more than 90 days," the WHO said in an information note on Monday. REUTERS

Wal-Mart to stop health care for some of its workers

Wal-Mart Stores Inc. said on Tuesday it was ending health care coverage for tens of thousands of part-time workers to cut costs in a move that could prompt other companies to follow suit.

The world's largest retailer said it will stop offering health benefits for employees who work fewer than 30 hours a week, a change that will affect 2 percent of its U.S. workforce of about 1.3 million, or some 26,000 people.

Coverage will be discontinued from Jan. 1, 2015. On that date the Affordable Care Act, popularly known as Obamacare, will require all companies employing 50 or more people to offer health insurance to those working at least 30 hours a week. REUTERS

Delaware mother charged after 4-year-old daughter brings heroin to day care

A Delaware mother was arrested on Monday after her 4-year-old daughter unknowingly brought roughly 250 packets of heroin to her day care and passed them out to classmates thinking they were candy, police said.

Ashley Tull, 30, of Selbyville was charged with drug possession and endangering the welfare of a child after her daughter brought the drugs to the Hickory Tree Child Care Center on Monday morning, Delaware State Police said in a statement.

Several of the children who received the small, unopened bags were taken to area hospitals as a precaution and were later released, police said. Police said the child unknowingly brought the heroin to the care center in a replacement backpack, after hers was ruined by a family pet the night before.

The investigation into the incident is ongoing, Delaware State Police said. REUTERS

Tull was released from jail after posting $6,000 bond, police said. She has been barred from coming into contact with her 4-year-old or her two other children, ages 9 and 11.

Light bulb moment: Low-energy LED wins Nobel prize

Bright idea. The bulbs change the way buildings are lit, offering a long-lasting and more efficient alternative.

An American and two Japanese scientists won the 2014 Nobel Prize for Physics on Tuesday for inventing a new energy-efficient and environment-friendly light source, leading to the creation of modern LED light bulbs.

Isamu Akasaki and Hiroshi Amano of Japan and Japanese-born U.S. citizen Shuji Nakamura won the prize for developing the blue light-emitting diode (LED) — the missing piece that now allows manufacturers to produce white-light lamps.

"Red and green LEDs have been around for a long time, but blue was really missing. Thanks to the blue LED we now can get white light sources which have very high energy efficiency and very long lifetime," Per Delsing, a member of the Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, told a news conference.

The award is a notable example of a practical discovery winning the prize, in contrast to last year when the physics prize went to scientists who predicted the existence of the Higgs boson particle that explains how elementary matter attained the mass to form stars and planets.

Frances Saunders, president of Britain's Institute of Physics, said the shift offered the potential for huge energy savings.

"With 20 percent of the world's electricity used for lighting, it's been calculated that optimal use of LED lighting could reduce this to 4 percent. Akasaki, Amano and Nakamura's research has made this possible and this prize recognizes this contribution," she said. REUTERS

"Incandescent light bulbs lit the 20th century; the 21st century will be lit by LED lamps."

The academy said in a statement awarding the 8 million Swedish crown ($1.1 million) prize

Analysis. As ISIS nears Turkey, expert says group 'is expanding their physical control'

The black flag of ISIS has been raised in the Syrian town of Kobani, visible from across the Turkish border, sparking fears that Islamic extremism could spread beyond its Syrian-Iraqi stronghold. But how viable a threat is the Islamic State to Turkey? Metro talks to Corina Simonelli, program manager of the Project on Violent Conflict at the University at Albany, to find out.

Tanks of Turkish Armed Forces roll near the Turkey-Syria border line in the Suruc district of Sanliurfa, Turkey, as the clashes between ISIS and Kurdish armed groups continue in Ayn al-Arab city. / GETTY IMAGES

Does ISIS have interests in Turkey? Why?
Yes. ISIS seeks to continue expanding their power and territorial control, and Turkey is a major player in the region.

What are Islamic State's next possible steps?
ISIS might keep pushing toward Baghdad and expanding their physical control in the region. Meanwhile, they continue to function as a government-like entity in many of the areas they control – implementing Sharia Law, attempting to win support publicly through propaganda and by providing services, and continuing their brutal tactics against the civilian populations.

How can ISIS be stopped from taking over towns?
In the short term, the international community needs to work with partners in the region to develop a coordinated defense strategy. Air strikes have been successful, but further involvement from nations in the region is necessary. Military might is vital to stopping ISIS's current onslaught, but countering the ideology behind the movement poses a more complex counterterrorism problem. It requires looking at underlying grievances: poverty, economic and political immobility and lack of education. By providing aid to improve and create stable governmental, economic and educational institutions, ISIS may have less sway to indoctrinate young potential adherents.

METRO WORLD NEWS

Question

Is Turkey in danger?

The massive influx of refugees into Turkey along with the closing of border crossings and resultant riots pose a threat. While the military threat of ISIS can be mitigated by Turkey and the involvement of international partners, the displacement of over a 100,000 civilians creates longer-term problems.

Jennifer Lawrence: 'I didn't tell you that you could look at my naked body'

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

Jennifer Lawrence is finally speaking out about the nude photo hacking attack to which she and several other female celebrities fell victim. And as usual, Lawrence has some pretty awesome things to say, so we'll just let her speak for herself: "I was just so afraid. I didn't know how this would affect my career," Lawrence tells Vanity Fair. "Just because I'm a public figure, just because I'm an actress, does not mean that I asked for this. It does not mean that it comes with the territory. It's my body, and it should be my choice, and the fact that it is not my choice is absolutely disgusting. I can't believe that we even live in that kind of world."

There's a reason it took her this long to speak out, as the violation of privacy was understandably pretty tough to get over. "Every single thing that I tried to write made me cry or get angry," Lawrence says. "I started to write an apology, but I don't have anything to say I'm sorry for. I was in a loving, healthy, great relationship for four years. It was long-distance, and either your boyfriend is going to look at porn or he's going to look at you." Which leads to one of the key points Lawrence so eloquently makes: Those photos are not for you. "It is not a scandal. It is a sex crime. It is a sexual violation," she says. "Anybody who looked at those pictures, you're perpetuating a sexual offense. You should cower with shame. Even people who I know and love say, 'Oh, yeah, I looked at the pictures.' I don't want to get mad, but at the same time I'm thinking, 'I didn't tell you that you could look at my naked body.'"

Gerard Depardieu: Actor, drunk, prostitute, grave robber

Now, on to less serious topics, such as Gerard Depardieu's past as a male prostitute. The highly quotable French actor — or is he technically a Russian actor now? I can't keep up — has a new autobiography, "That's the Way It Was," and it has some rather interesting revelations. For instance, as a teen and young adult in France, he worked as an escort. "I've known since I was very young that I please homosexuals," he writes — though that statement should probably be in past tense, if you know what I mean. Oh, and not only did he please them, he would also sometimes mug them, which is just poor customer service: "At 20, the thug in me was alive and kicking." That thug in him also led him into the lucrative worlds of auto theft — for which he served time — and grave robbing. Delightful.

Depardieu also addresses that whole "I drink 14 bottles of wine a day" thing from a recent interview, and I have to give him this: He can be rather poetic. "I'm obsessed with the racket in my body, the beating of my heart, the gurgling of my intestines, my joints cracking," he writes. "I must drink so as not to hear it, so as not to go mad from it. I can't get to sleep unless I am dead drunk." Just be sure to check your pockets when you wake up, Gerry. Karma can be rough.

This had to be an awkward security briefing. Queen Elizabeth is reportedly "deeply concerned" about safety at Buckingham Palace since so many of her staff are having overnight guests that they met through dating apps such as Tinder and Grindr, according to the Daily Mail. "There are real and serious security concerns at Buckingham Palace about members of staff [and their] use of dating apps such as Tinder, which can be rather sleazy," a source says. "The palace police are particularly unhappy about the number of guests of servants staying overnight, especially when they may have only just met." First of all, I wish someone had been using a hidden camera when a staffer had to explain to the Queen about Grindr and Tinder. And secondly, there's a "let them eat cake" joke in here somewhere, but I'm not sure the end result is printable.

Can we say anything good about a 'Say Anything' TV show?

Does Lloyd Dobler have a place in the 21st century?
20TH CENTURY FOX

In the "everything old is new again" TV department, we have some good news and some bad news. First, the good news: David Lynch and Mark Frost are bringing back "Twin Peaks," 25 years after its cancellation, as a limited series on Showtime sometime in 2016. The nine-episode run will continue the story from the original series, picking up 25 years later. If you're Facebook friends with anybody over 30, you likely saw this news on your feed on Monday.

Now, for the less-welcome news: NBC is going back to the 1980s movie well for series ideas, as the network has ordered a script for a sitcom based on the John Cusack-starring classic "Say Anything," picking up 10 years after the end of the 1989 film. NBC previously optioned "Real Genius" and "Problem Child" for series adaptations, so apparently the trend of turning old TV shows into movies has been completely reversed.

IS 'REAL HOUSEWIVES' COMING TO PHILLY?

A.D. AMOROSI

A.D. Amorosi is a journalist covering arts, entertainment, food news and gossip. He can be reached at divaland@aol.com.

Bravo's "Real Housewives of New Jersey" is losing Teresa Giudice to prison, but will there be another "RHO" in the tristate area? One area public relations exec and one girlfriend of a Philly film honcho — both staying anonymous, as they've been sworn to secrecy — have been contacted about being "Real Housewives of Philadelphia." Stay tuned.

Speaking of Philly public relations women, congrats to Nicole Cashman, head of Cashman & Associates, on the birth of her son with DJ/entrepreneur Nigel Richards: Nigel Jett Richards.

It looks like onetime Underground Arts bar manager Jesse Andreozzi is staying underground, joining up with Brü Craft & Wurst owner Teddy Sourias for BRU's long-discussed basement project, U-Bahn. Now set for a November opening, the subway-themed spot features "local cocktails, local beers, local live bands" with a small stage and nearly 3,500 square feet of stone and reclaimed wood decor.

Questlove of The Roots joined the Philly Love Fest celebrating Uniqlo's official opening this weekend with a lengthy DJ set at Smith Memorial Playground. / HUGHE DILLON

After 20 years of being the East Coast's young rockabilly capital, Glenside's Blue Comet dropped its rockabilly Sundays and jazz jam Saturdays (for now) for more of a culinary edge. Nearby Plush Nightspot also dropped rockabilly nights to become Osteria Calabria, an Italian cafe at the hands of "Bar Rescue" host Jon Taffer.

Seen on the scene

- Fox29's Mike Jerrick joined forces with DA Seth Williams' Second Chance Foundation for the "Ya Gotta Try This Tasting Party" at the Independence Visitors Center. The party raised over $20,000 for disadvantaged youth — a pretty good score for its first year.

- Philly's young pitching phenom Mo'ne Davis met up with Spike Lee over the weekend at the Art Museum steps and the Marian Anderson Rec Center. The Taney Dragon and the film director shot interview material for an upcoming documentary on Davis.

- No word on why she was here, but comedian/actress Janeane Garofalo was spied buzzing between Hard Rock Cafe and Bank & Bourbon, across from each other on Market Street.

Interview. Nas reflects on his groundbreaking record with the new documentary "Time Is Illmatic."

NAS
GETTY IMAGES

The rapper looks back on Queensbridge in the documentary "Nas: Time Is Illmatic," in theaters now. / TRIBECA FILM

Nas wasn't sure filmmakers One9 and Erik Parker would ever get "Nas: Time Is Illmatic" off the ground. The two had approached the rapper many years ago about making a documentary about his landmark 1994 album, widely considered to be one of the masterpieces of hip-hop. But when One9 and Parker showed up years later, still working on it, he knew he wanted to help out.

"I had to see how serious they were," Nas recalls. "This was something that was real, between these two guys. Once I sensed that, I was in."

The doc doesn't just look at the album; it looks at what wrought it. Nas wrote "Illmatic" as a harrowing portrait of the Queensbridge projects, where he was raised.

"It took me back to why I even got in the business," says Nas. "Back then it wasn't 'I'm gonna get rich tomorrow.' It was about money, but it wasn't about getting super-rich. That would be against the mission. The mission was to give people the story after Chuck D, after Eric B., after Kool G Rap, after Ice Cube. We were like reporters that came after those greats from the era before me."

Nas imagines hip-hop as one in constant flux, welcoming in new generations to take up the mantle. But he's not done, especially after watching the movie. "It made me want to do a new record. I needed this movie so I could say, 'This is where I am now. Look at where you started.'"

Nas at Harvard

Last January, Harvard announced the Nasir Jones Hip-Hop Fellowship, named after Nas' birth name and intended to attract those involved in the arts. That it's named for someone who dropped out of school — although whose work is regularly studied in universities — is not lost on him.

"If you're from the street, you feel like prestigious schools are not for you," Nas explains. "It's not that they don't want you. But they train people who are eventually going to go out in the world and forget you. So to bring me there was saying to America, 'We are here and we're American, and we have to bridge the gaps.'"

Christina Ricci is trying to be polite

CHRISTINA RICCI'S LATEST FILM IS THE ANIMATED "THE HERO OF COLOR CITY." / FILMMAGIC

Interview. Once prone to sarcasm and darkness, the actress is now in a kids' movie, "The Hero of Color City."

Fifteen years ago it might have seemed odd for Christina Ricci to be in a G-rated animated movie about talking crayons. Yet here she is, top-billed in "The Hero of Color City," a film for kids in which she voices Yellow, an anthropomorphic color stick seeking to stop a catastrophe in an all-crayon realm.

Because many of the films Ricci did when she was younger — "The Opposite of Sex," "Buffalo '66," not to mention "The Addams Family" — were dark and self-aware, it can be disarming to see her in nicer fare. When asked about a reported quote that she was actively seeking sweeter roles, she says that's not actually true. "So much of the stuff that's out there is from different periods in my life," she says. "I always wanted to do a broad spectrum of things."

She continues, "I definitely was — and can be — sarcastic. But I was also a teenager. I tended to do things that were shocking. I just said things for shock value, because I was a teenager," she says. "Can anyone be held to the person they were as a teenager?"

She's definitely not that person anymore. "I just try to be a little bit more polite these days," she says.

Consumers rush to get free TV after Supreme Court ruling

U.S. households to get free TV with slick little micro antenna device engineered to pull in all over-the-air TV channels for free as law forces network giants to broadcast all TV signals regionally to all 50 states

Free TV: Crystal clear HDTV picture with no cable, no satellite or internet connection and no monthly bills

NATIONWIDE - Consumers just got handed a really good reason to get rid of cable and satellite bills.

Everyone fed up with high cable and satellite bills, huge channel bundles and poor customer service are now flocking to get a slick little micro antenna device that lets U.S. households watch broadcast TV legally without paying a cable or satellite company for it and no monthly bills.

So much attention is now being focused on this slick little device since the High Court handed down the big win for consumers.

The landmark decision highlights the public's ability to get all the top rated national TV network and regional shows broadcast over the air absolutely free.

The only thing consumers need to do to get the slick little micro antenna device is call the Free TV Order Hotline beginning at 8:30am this morning or simply return the Free TV Claim Form printed at the bottom of this page before the 3-day postmark deadline ends.

Everyone who does is getting the slick little $88 device at a real steal because it pulls in crystal-clear digital TV channels for free with no monthly bills.

The target audience for the slick little micro antenna device has been young urban professionals who don't want to watch more than 20 or 30 live TV channels. But now older folks are snapping up the slick little device because it's rapidly becoming popular for those on fixed incomes and anyone who just doesn't want to pay a cable or satellite bill anymore.

"When advanced technology enables consumers to just plug in a simple device to get free TV, consumers are the winners," said David Martin, Senior Analyst at CompTek, the company that makes the sleek little micro antenna device that works on virtually any TV.

"This special advertising feature is being so widely published because there's never a monthly bill to pay and all the channels you get are absolutely free," Martin said.

"That's why the slick little device is not like being tied to a cable or satellite company. The device is engineered to access solely over-the-air signals that include all the top rated national and all broadcast stations, like DISNEY (ABC), COMCAST (NBC), CBS, 21st Century FOX (FOX), PBS, CW and about 90% of the most watched TV shows like America's Got Talent, NCIS, The Big Bang Theory, 60 Minutes, The Bachelorette, Blue Bloods, Dateline, Person of Interest, American Idol, The Voice, Dancing With the Stars, CSI, Two and a Half Men, Sunday Night Football plus news, weather and sports all for free with no monthly bills," Martin said.

That means consumers who get the slick little device can channel surf through all the nations top favorite TV shows. The number of shows and channels consumers get depends on where they live. People living in large metropolitan areas can get up to 53 crystal-clear digital channels, while people in outlying areas will get less. That means even consumers in rural areas that pull in NBC, ABC, CBS, FOX and PBS broadcasts will still get hundreds of shows each year to watch for free.

"It's so simple all you do is just plug it into the back of your TV and place the razor thin micro device on a window or wall, then autoscan does all the rest. It works on virtually any model TV and you get a stunning HDTV quality picture," Martin said.

"It just doesn't make any sense to keep paying for TV when you can get all the top rated network channels and hundreds of shows absolutely free," he said.

But there is no time to waste, early reports show the free TV Hotlines are extremely busy.

So, if lines are busy keep trying, all calls will be answered. (Continues on next page)

FREE TV WITH NO CABLE BILLS: Thanks to a slick little micro antenna device that plugs into the back of any TV, consumers are getting free crystal-clear digital channels without cable or satellite. Its like getting a new HDTV for free. That's why U.S. residents are flooding the Free TV Hotlines and rushing to the Post Office to return the Free TV Claim Form reprinted at the bottom of this page. Consumers in all 50 states who want to get Free TV with no monthly bills just need to call within 72 hours or beat the 3-day postmark deadline. Consumers should begin calling the free TV Hotlines at 1-888-862-3559 Ext.60042 beginning at 8:30am or be sure the Free TV Claim Form is postmarked by midnight 3 days from today's publication date.

WHO WINS IN SUPREME COURT'S LANDMARK DECISION

WINNERS:

CONSUMERS

Consumers who get a slick little micro antenna device like the razor thin Clear-Cast® brand will get free TV with no monthly bills. The courts ruling emboldens the ability for consumers to legally use the slick little device in their own home to get free TV. The simple device is engineered to pull in nothing but free TV channels in crystal-clear digital picture with no cable, satellite or internet connection. That's why this slick little micro antenna is a real steal at just $88 because it is such a smart alternative for everyone who is sick and tired of paying cable and satellite bills.

NETWORKS AND TV STATIONS

With the victory, all major networks and TV stations get to protect their copyrights, but they must continue to comply with Federal Law 47CFR SEC. 1.4000 which allows consumers who have a slick little micro antenna device to receive all the crystal-clear over-the-air broadcast channels for free. Shown here are a handful of the major networks that must broadcast over the air channels that consumers can receive for free with the slick little micro antenna devices that saves money by not picking up expensive cable only channels like ESPN so there's never a monthly bill for consumers to pay.

Network trademarks and programs are the property of their respective owners and are not affiliated with or endorsing the antenna devices. Consumers report the crystal-clear picture quality with the Clear-Cast brand micro antenna device is the best quality picture they've ever seen.

MOVIE STUDIOS

Hollywood cheered the high court's decision because consumers who have a slick little micro antenna device will receive all of the major network Hollywood movies broadcast over the air for free.

LOSERS:

AEREO

Aereo will likely suspend its business since the court's decision after it developed a way to bootleg major TV network's content. Aereo charged subscribers $8 to $12 a month to lease a dime size remote antenna located in the company's facility.

DEVICE MAKERS

The Computer & Communications Industry Association backed Aereo's position, having concerns that the ruling could be detrimental to other cloud services.

CORD CUTTERS

TV viewers in large cities such as New York, Dallas and Boston who relied on Aereo's service that provided more than two dozen local channels.

Festival. The 10th DesignPhiladelphia looks at everything from rugs to hi-tech gadgets.

Tour Bobbie Tilkens-Fisher's mid-century modern home, designed by Irwin Stein, on Oct. 12. / COURTESY OF AT HOME MODERN

The folks at the American Street Showroom in Kensington are going to pull the rug out from underneath the DesignPhiladelphia Festival.

Rather, they're going to put Turkish rugs on top of everything for their DesignPhiladelphia event Oct. 13.

"We're going to have it set up almost like an art installation, but it's going to be these incredible handcrafted rugs, a lot of which are made from reclaimed materials," says Kim Kamens, director of American Street. "The plan is to have a big party downstairs where people are talking about the objects and the spaces, and upstairs is a more quiet place. When you enter the space, you are either given booties or you take off your shoes and it's almost like an art installation where you're surrounded by color."

The rugs, crafted by New York rug maker Baki Ildiz, represents for Kamens a striving for permanence in an evolving world.

"Just like the Romantic painters and any other movement where there was a giant technological advance, there's going to be a group of people, especially artists, who ask

'Bragging rights'

The festival, organized by the Philadelphia Center for Architecture, includes more than 120 events featuring 400 practicing architects, designers and creative professionals. The theme is "Decade of Design."

"Design is the thread that runs through everything," says Hilary Jay, director of the Center for Architecture. "Design affects all aspects of everyday life."

And Philadelphia is a good home for such an all-encompassing design fest, she adds: "There are seven universities and colleges that have design programs in them. ... So we have bragging rights."

'Well, what are we giving up for this [new technology], for the ability to 3-D print something out of plastic in our house?' " Kamens says.

Such questions, both great and small, will be asked — and there will be a lot of neat stuff to look at, too — during the 10th annual DesignPhiladelphia, which starts tomorrow.

Guest stars. Actress Laura Benanti tries out a different singing style in her upcoming stint on the country drama.

Broadway fans may know "Nashville"'s newest guest star from her Tony Award-winning performance in "Gypsy," but Laura Benanti is trying out a new musical style these days. She'll be appearing as Sadie Stone, another in the "Nashville" roster of musical artists trying to make it in the tough world of country music.

How would you describe Sadie Stone?
She is a singer/songwriter who's been writing for probably 10 years or so. ... She's recently had sort of a breakout album that's brought her more mainstream success, so she has some decision-making to do in terms of who she's going to allow to shepherd her into the next phase of her career.

Will she be involved in some of the soapier aspects of the show?
It's been focused less on romance and drama, and more on her career, and her friendship with Rayna [Connie Britton]. ... It is "Nashville," so I'm sure that it'll turn into something a little bit soapier.

Bonus question

Now that you've seen it up close, can you confirm if Connie Britton's hair is as perfect as it seems?
It's like the hair is made of angels' wings. It's so gorgeous. I don't really understand it. I don't understand how it exists.

She's just doing something right with it.
Even when she comes in with her hair wet, I'm still like, "That's the most beautiful hairdo I've ever seen." And it's just like slicked back. It's maddening.

The Weekly Yelp. Philly's best late-night eats

It's 2:30 in the morning. Congratulations, you've survived another night of drinking, dancing and gallivanting around Philadelphia. Unfortunately, your physical appearance and ravenous appetite are reminiscent of something one might find on "The Walking Dead" — but have no fear, because we have four local eateries to cure your late-night drunchies.

Grab a booth or a seat at the counter at Little Pete's. / PROVIDED

Lorenzo & Sons Pizza

305 South St., Society Hill

The best $3 (or $6 if you're a fat kid like me) you'll ever spend at 2 a.m. on a Saturday night. Nothing washes down regret and poor decisions like a triangle of melty, cheesy goodness the size of your torso. SHAUNA G.

Underdogs

132 S. 17th St., Rittenhouse Square

The owner has a special every month where he creates his own masterful combination, which turns out surprisingly well! One more plug: It is open until 4 a.m. on Fridays and Saturdays! Have a late-night craving? Go to Underdogs. WILLIE X.

Little Pete's

219 S. 17th St., Rittenhouse Square

The staff treats you well and doesn't hesitate to take care of whatever is needed at your table. Yet, they're also not overbearing to the point that you feel rushed, which is crucial when you're trying to rehash those late-night stories with friends. JUSTYN W.

Insomnia Cookies

108 S. 16th St., Center City

Freaking amazing; that's the best way to describe this dessert place. It's open to 3 a.m. seven days a week. They have some of the most amazing cookies I have personally ever tasted. WAYNE W.

‘Clutter is so not chic’

Tips. Expert advice on how to be a domestic diva.

For most of us, the thought of conquering the dishes or tackling loads of laundry elicits eye rolls, sighs and groans. We’re too busy during the week and are having too much fun on the weekends. We allow the piles to grow exponentially until we have no choice but to attack — basically, when we’re out of dishes or clean underwear.

Jennifer Scott, the best-selling author of “Lessons from Madame Chic,” a book that shares secrets about how to live like a stylish Parisian, is now releasing a new book, “At Home with Madame Chic.” In it, she focuses on bringing passion back into those pout-provoking chores.

“Doing the small things that we have to do throughout the day, like tidying up the kitchen after breakfast, putting away the dishes and folding the laundry, makes our house more of a home,” says Scott. “Homemaking is kind of an old-fashioned pastime, but I think it’s something that everyone can do.”

So how could we possibly ever feel chic while cleaning the toilet?

Scott shares some tips to help you dominate domestic life.

MOLLY CONGDON
@MetroBos
letters@metro.us

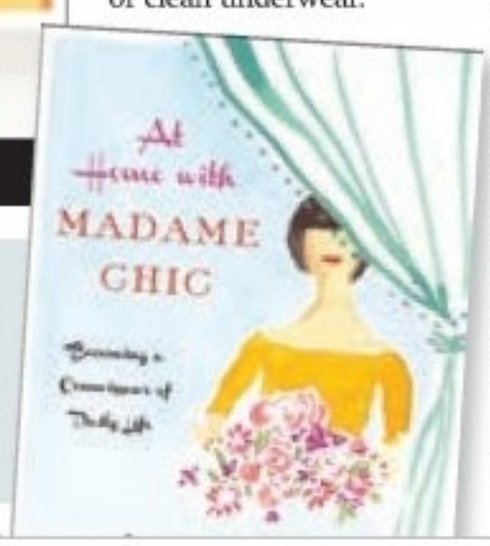
Stay away from the sweatpants

Dress to impress, even at home. “A lot of people don’t like to wear their nice clothes at home because they’re worried they’re going to ruin them,” says Scott. Her solution is a layer away. “Just put an apron on over your dress while doing the dishes.”

Trade in that ratty T-shirt for a shirt that makes you feel good, says Scott. / COLOURBOX

Until your dream house

Appreciate the home you have, says Scott. “A lot of people think, ‘Oh, when I move to this house or this city, I’ll be happy.’ You have to live well in the home you have right now.”



Manage mess

“Clutter is so not chic,” Scott says. Decluttering your home is essential because it makes your life a lot easier. For many of us, mornings are a mad rush out the door. By the time we pick our outfit, put on our faces and grab our bags, we barely have time for a toast. Want to start your day in a nonhectic way? Scott says to take care of a few simple things the night before, like prepping for breakfast. “It saves time and alleviates the stress of constantly feeling like you’re going to be late.”

Create a pump-up playlist

“True chic is an inner state of being and maintaining inner peace throughout your day, no matter what you’re doing,” says Scott. “Instead of bemoaning the task in your head, get excited about it and do what you can to make it something you look forward to every day.” How can you get yourself amped? Scott recommends playing your favorite music, listening to a book on tape or even simply meditating while doing these domestic duties.

NEW DIABETES STUDY SHOWS:
*Insulin Shots More Than Double the Risk of DEATH in Type II Diabetics

A new clinical study has shown that the disease of TYPE II DIABETES CAN BEGIN TO BE REVERSED in as little as 1 WEEK!

A free guide has just been made available to Type II Diabetics detailing an approach that appears to be more powerful than any drug known to modern science. The free diabetic guide explains in plain English how many diabetics have been able to reduce and eliminate their drugs and insulin injections, lose weight without exercise, reduce and eliminate the risk for diabetic complications, restore pancreatic function, and even become non-diabetic.

The free guide also reveals rarely used diagnostic testing that is helping doctors understand potential causes of diabetes beyond weight gain, genetics and lack of exercise.

FIND OUT WHICH APPS ARE KILLING YOUR BATTERY

'Normal'

Price: 99 cents
Platform(s): iOS, Android

Let's say you haven't sprung for the iPhone 6, perhaps because you've heard when it bends it doesn't go back, or if the screen cracks it cracks real good. Though these are issues that may be resolved soon, that does mean you might be living with one of a smartphone's most significant flaws: its weak, crappy battery. You may find your phone, if you use it at all, dies not even halfway through a day. You might have even purchased an external battery that turns your slim phone into a fat, bulging brick.

There's at least some solace to be taken from the new app "Normal," which was released in August. Once you let it into your phone, "Normal" gets all up in its business and tells you which apps are feasting ravenously upon your battery life and by how much. As it turns out, the biggest criminal that most will have is "Facebook," as well as its evil cohort, "Facebook Messenger." Turning off both can gain your battery a whole battery of living.

On one hand, it's cool to know this and have something that will remind you. On the other hand, "Normal" is almost certainly telling you what you already know. In fact, even knowing that "Facebook" and "Messenger" are huge battery sucks may make downloading (and paying for) "Normal" redundant. It's not surprising that it will also highlight apps that track your moves, such as the app "Moves" — one that tells you how much you walked, ran or biked by switching into gear anytime you walk, run or bike. You'll use "Normal" once, but it's possible you need to use it never.

"Normal" will tell you what apps are killing your battery. (Spoiler: It's probably "Facebook.") / PROVIDED

Just in case

Turning off apps

Incidentally, you know how to turn off apps, right? Not everyone does. On the iPhone you hit the bottom square button, then swipe any app you don't want to be on, off. If you've never known about this function, that means apps have been on since they were first ever turned on when you downloaded them. Going through this every now and then can extend your battery life.

How realistic was 'Gilmore Girls'?

Family issues. Psychoanalyst Jennifer Kunst talks mothers and daughters.

Was it a nice weekend outside? "Gilmore Girls" fans wouldn't know, as they likely spent the weekend in front of Netflix, watching the mother-daughter dramedy that reminded us to call our moms just a little more often.

Lorelei and Rory Gilmore have the kind of mother-daughter relationship that many wish they could have, but the show did omit a crucial element, according to psychoanalyst Dr. Jennifer Kunst.

"One of the cool things about 'Gilmore Girls' that draws people in is that they're so bonded to each other," she says. But "they don't deal too much with what ordinary mothers and children have to deal with, which is the other side of that: being separate."

With 20 years of experience, Kunst says parent-related complaints are the second most common from patients at her practice, which she addresses in her new book, "Wisdom from the Couch." We asked her how realistic "Gilmore Girls" was and what makes relationships with our parents difficult.

Daughters of young moms:

Lorelei is still growing up herself, and you can see in that relationship — this is fairly common in real life — that there's a lot of pressure on the child to mother the parent, if the parent is young and also doesn't have parents that they can turn to.

Rory and Lorelei Gilmore have an aspirational relationship, Kunst says. / THE CW

Where you lead

Why did the show resonate with so many people?

There was a mix of real-life struggle, and people really trying to improve themselves and providing each other support in doing so.
And the other thing is the relationship that Lorelei and Rory have with each other — it's an ideal, it's what we all wish we could have and is probably not actually possible in real life, but there is something beautiful about it that is an aspiration, in a way.

Lorelei couldn't lean on her mom. Can that affect a person?

If you don't have a mother who believes in you, it's a real blow in self-confidence. There are lots of ways that can show itself in life, whether it's not having very good relationships, promiscuity, drug abuse, depression, all the many avenues that we can take to cope with the feeling that we're not lovable.

What makes a good parent?

I call it either loving discipline or disciplined love: There is a balance between those positive, affectionate, close-bonded feelings and the ability to be firm or to step back and let the child become their own person, which can be very difficult for moms to do. The challenge for children is to be able to depend on their parents for help and guidance.

Why are relationships with parents complicated?

We have a sense of [our parents] that starts when we're babies thinking that they are bigger than life, they are all powerful. We adore them, we fear them, and that makes our relationship particularly with mom and dad so powerful. Because it's not only based in reality — it's based in our fantasy, what we imagine them to be and what we can't imagine them to be.

Should moms and daughters be friends?

When you've got little ones in particular, friendship is a component of the relationship, but there is so much discipline and learning involved that friendship can't be, in a healthy way at least, at the center. But when we grow up and we have lives of our own, then we can return to that relationship with our mother, still mother-daughter but the growing and the discipline that mom needs to help us with has been established and friendship can take a more central role.

Don't fear Ebola, work to stop it

As a medical student, I am surprised at the sensationalist coverage by the media that is causing fear over a possible outbreak in the U.S. Ebola is spread through contact with bodily fluids, period. It is not spread through the air. In fact, it's similar to HIV in that unless you have sex with an infected person or touch their blood, vomit, mucus, etc, you're more than likely safe. The reason it's such a problem in African countries is because they have a different culture and education level than we do here. So don't be scared, but perhaps consider donating money to an organization that is on the front lines.

Re: 'Characteristics of successful people' (Metro, Oct. 7) I take exception to the Timothy Sykes article. What did Sykes do or make, whom did he help or what did he develop that makes him a successful person in the eyes of Metro? In this era of post-deregulation, we have all learned, to our shock, just how easy it has been for young traders to make millions, as long as they're relatively bright, highly caffeinated and willing to not think too much about the implications of what they're doing.

Top storylines for the Flyers this fall

NHL. Hockey returns as the Flyers face the Bruins in Boston to kick off the 2014-15 season Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

It seems like ages since the Flyers fell to the Rangers in Game 7 of the opening round of the playoffs last spring. The Orange and Black return to the ice with some new faces, some new challenges and have their sights set on improving on a solid 2013-14 season under coach Craig Berube.

ERIC GOLDSTEIN
@ericesponda
sports@metro.us

Fast start

Last season's 1-7 start—the worst in franchise history — put the Flyers in a deep hole that they spent the entire season trying to climb out of. They went an impressive 41-23-10 over the final 74 games and qualified for the playoffs. It goes without saying that they need a strong first month and then hit November with their heads above water.

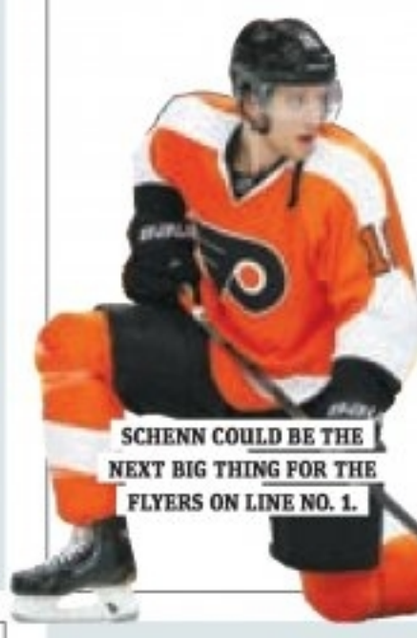
It won't be easy as nine of the 10 teams they play in October qualified for the playoffs, including opening against the Eastern Conference favorite Bruins as well as facing Stanley Cup champion L.A. Kings, the Blackhawks and Penguins. Escape October with at least a .500 mark or better and it should set up a successful season.

Wayne Simmonds had a strong finish to his season.

Replacing Hartnell

While the Flyers gained some speed and future payroll relief by dealing Scott Hartnell to the Blue Jackets for R.J. Umberger in the offseason, Hartnell's departure left a giant void on the left side of the top line with Claude Giroux and Jakub Voracek. Hartnell, who scored 20 goals or more in five of seven seasons in Philly.

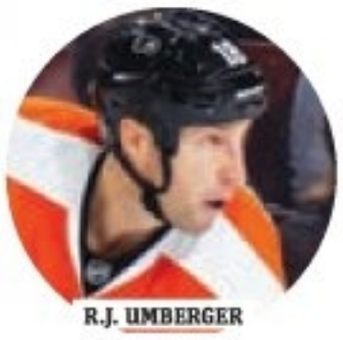
The Flyers feel that Brayden Schenn can step into that role. The 23-year-old tallied a career-high 20 goals last year. Giroux said the two forwards are similar and that they can hit, fight and go to the net and score goals. It will be interesting to see if Schenn can develop chemistry with Giroux and Voracek on a potent first line.



SCHENN COULD BE THE NEXT BIG THING FOR THE FLYERS ON LINE NO. 1.

Even strength

The Flyers finished the regular season ranked eighth on the power play and seventh in the penalty kill. However, the performance of their special teams was not enough to overcome their shortcomings at even strength.



R.J. UMBERGER

ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

The club ranked 17th in the league at 5-on-5 during the regular season and had the worst ratio of any playoff team except for the Canadiens.

In the playoffs, the Flyers' 0.53 ratio was the worst out of 16 teams. Improvement in this department is paramount.

Replacing Timonen

Even at age 38, Kimmo Timonen was the Flyers best defenseman last year and would have been entering this season.

However, his career is possibly over due to blood clots that formed in his lung over the summer. It only puts more pressure on an already mediocre and slow defense.

The Flyers will lean on Mark Streit to anchor the unit and hope youngsters Luke Schenn and Michael Del Zotto have breakout seasons.

Watch out for Ghost

Shayne Gostisbehere will start the season in the AHL with the Lehigh Valley Phantoms. However, he probably won't end it there. One of the organization's top defensive prospects, "Ghost" could warrant a call-up in the second half should injuries deplete the Flyers blue line or a veteran's performance is subpar. Keep a close eye on the kid.

Flyers' Berube starts year with clean slate

NHL. Flyers fans can only hope Craig Berube's squad plays the same way he did during his 17 seasons in the NHL.

When Craig Berube took over as head coach of the Philadelphia Flyers one week into the regular season last year after the team fired Peter Laviolette, he inherited a roster that was 0-3, disjointed, disorganized and at times even seemed disinterested.

A veteran of 17 seasons in the NHL with five different teams and the last eight years as a coach in the Flyers organization, Berube immediately set a different course, injected life into a moribund first month and resurrected the Orange and Black's season.

From Day 1, Berube pulled a complete 180 with the system by going from Laviolette's offensive-minded approach to a defensive philosophy.

And he did it on the fly during the regular season and without a training camp.

It took about a month, but the Flyers figured it out and bought into Berube's style and the team had one of the best records in the league from December until the end of the season (before falling to the New York Rangers in seven games in the first round of the Stanley Cup Playoffs).

It's a clean slate this year for the franchise's 18th head coach. Berube has had a full training camp to reinforce his system and gets to start the season at 0-0. The players, most of whom have returned from last year, know what he expects out of them and they know what to expect from their coach.

Veterans arrived at camp in better shape than last year and went 3-3-2 in the preseason. They finished 1-5-1 last year — when owner Ed Snider called it the worst training camp he'd ever seen.

It's been much better this September, but the Flyers weren't without their ugly performances. After one of the clunkers, like a 4-1 loss to the Devils, Berube didn't hold back on his assessment.

"It was disappointing, to be honest with you," said Berube. "I thought it was a lack of effort and skating most of the game. The goalie was good. That's about it. … I'm disappointed in our veterans in the way they performed. It's not acceptable."

An enforcer during his career, Berube told it like it was on and off the ice and has carried the same straight-forward personality as head coach. It seems to fit the mold of the team — and its fans — well.

"He lets us know," Flyers forward Wayne Simmonds said. "I think (Berube and Laviolette) both let us know when they weren't happy. Chief gets on us and he lets us know when we're not doing things correctly, but at the same time, when we are doing things right he does let us know that as well. It goes hand-in-hand."

He also still has that snarl, when needed, from his playing days.

"When he gets barking, you don't want to be making eye contact with him too much," Simmonds said, smiling. "If he's' staring at you, you generally did something wrong."

And now the Flyers get to do so this season from Day 1.

NHL. 2014-15 Eastern Conference preview: Tampa team to beat

Stamkos returns after missing most of last season. / GETTY IMAGES

New rules have been implemented in an attempt to increase scoring and to penalize players who attempt to embellish penalties. Despite an NHL full of changes, there is a constant: the Stanley Cup.

1. Tampa Bay Lightning
Ex-Rangers Brian Boyle and Anton Stralman were signed in free agency, as was former Islanders goaltender Evgeni Nabokov and veteran forward Brenden Morrow. Jason Garrison was acquired in a trade, while Ryan Callahan re-upped with the Lightning. Have we mentioned Vezina finalist Ben Bishop or that Steven Stamkos guy?

2. Pittsburgh Penguins
The Metropolitan Division final series loss to the Rangers prompted an organizational blood letting in Pittsburgh. GM Ray Shero and head coach Dan Bylsma were dismissed for Jim Rutherford and Mike Johnston.

3. Boston Bruins
The NHL's best team in the regular season last year should be a strong squad in 2014-15, despite the salary cap-created loss of Jarome Iginla.

4. Montreal Canadiens
Les Habitants were criticized during the playoffs for their brash off-ice personas and their penchant for embellishing penalties on ice. Left unsaid was that the Canadiens are very good.

5. New York Rangers
The Rangers' first appearance in the Stanley Cup Final since 1993-94 was the final arc in a season-long production in which a new coach and new faces were introduced on Broadway.

6. Columbus Blue Jackets
The Blue Jackets gained admirers for the way they challenged the Penguins in the six-game, first-round series. Enthusiasm is high for Columbus.

7. New Jersey Devils
The Devils should be improved this season with Cory Schneider (16-15-12, 1.97 GAA, .921 save percentage) receiving the majority of starts in goal, and the offseason additions of top-six wingers Mike Cammalleri and Martin Havlat.

8. Philadelphia Flyers
The Flyers were forced to essentially stand pat over the summer aside from trading for R.J. Umberger. Their season will be determined by how well Steve Mason and the defense performs. DENIS GORMAN
